Summary

I'm Ibrahim, a Front End and Software Developer. I'm passionate about designing and building web and software applications. I enjoy the entire development process from design to completion. If I can't do what you want, I'll surely figure it out. My interest in programming has led me to learn both front-end and software technologies such as HTML5, CSS3, PHP, JavaScript, and Java. I've worked alongside senior designers and developers who have raised my standards for what's expected of any web and software application.
